Biographical Information

Reverend John Dennison Kingsbury was born in Hanover, New Hampshire on April 19, 1831. He came from a strong lineage of Puritans who had traveled to and settled in America. John was sent to a private school at a young age and by 15 was known by some as "the little master". His interest in the Bible began at a young age and he even taught classes in moral science and the Westminster Catechism. He attended University of Vermont and received his M.A. in 1852. He then went to the Andover Theological Seminary, graduating in 1856. Later on in life, the Andover Theological Seminary honored him with the degree of Doctor of Divinity in 1887. His first pastorate was at the Congregational Church in Brandon, Vermont. His longest commitment would be in 1866 when he began working in Bradford, Massachusetts. He was the active pastor at First Congregational Church for over thirty-five years, where he enjoyed tremendous support. He also was an executive member of the Congregational Home Missionary Society, work that would see him changing locations later on in his life. The society asked him to take general oversight of the society's work in the west. He continued that work until his death on November 11, 1908.
