Abstract:	The Emington Congregational Church in Emington, Illinois, was established on March 23, 1875. The church building was moved from farmland to the center of Emington in 1881. A new church was built on the same location between 1905 and 1906 to accommodate the growing congregation. The church shared ministry with the Dwight Congregational Church briefly in 1931 and more permanently with the Odell Congregational Church starting in 1955. The church joined the United Church of Christ in 1964 and closed in 2021. This archival collection contains records which document the operation of the church as well as records which document the activities of the members of the church. The collection includes meeting minutes, auxiliary group records, financial records, and vital membership records.

Historical Note

The Emington Congregational Church was established on March 23, 1875, though some of the the initial members of the church had been worshipping together since at least 1868. The original church building had been an unused church at Cedar Point. The building was disassembled and then reassembled at a farm outside Emington. In 1881 the building was moved once again into the center of Emington where the Emington Congregational Church would remain until its eventual closure.

By 1905, the church community had outgrown their edifice and decided to build a new building. Construction began in 1905 and was completed in 1906. A fire damaged part of the roof of the church in 1927. A parsonage was built on the church's land in 1929. The Emington Congregational Church temporarily shared a minister with the Dwight Congregational Church starting in 1931. A more permanent shared ministry with the Odell Congregational Church was begun in 1955 with Rev. Esra Vornholt serving as pastor of both churches. The church joined the United Church of Christ on January 28, 1964. The church closed in 2021.
